

Our country was built on ideals. Those ideals must be renewed in each generation.

Who we are

Constitutional Rights Foundation is a non-partisan, Los Angeles-based nonprofit with a national reach. We pass the ideals, ideas, and practices of participatory democracy on to future generations by making history, law and government come alive to young people.

CRF

Engages students through compelling programs and interactive materials that meet high educational standards.

Increases civic participation by preparing young people to be informed, skilled, and capable citizens.

Provides balance and relevance by encouraging students to consider differing viewpoints and understand how law and government affect the issues they care about.

Creates innovative education incorporating the latest techniques, tools, and technologies.

Serves all students — with a special emphasis on the underserved.

How we do it

Constitutional Rights Foundation impacts more than a million students each year with innovative, high-quality programs and educational resources.

We offer

Hands-on experiences and competitions including the Los Angeles County and California Mock Trial Competition, Courtroom to Classroom, and Cops & Kids: Working Together for Peace on the Streets.

Internships that prepare underserved, deserving young people for college and careers by combining focused seminars with professional work experience.

Teacher professional development in person and on-line on the use of our curriculum resources.

Publications such as Criminal Justice in America and Bill of Rights in Action used by tens of thousands of teachers around the country.

Interactive web sites with hundreds of free resources receiving over 4.6 million unique visitors a year. Specialized sites intensively cover topics such as Immigration and Intellectual Property.

Educate. Engage. Empower

Join CRF in keeping the ideals of democracy alive and strong

Informed, active citizens are essential for our democracy to thrive.

Constitutional Rights Foundation inspires, informs and engages young Americans in civic life.

We educate students about the rights and responsibilities of citizens, and the importance and relevance of the ideals in the Constitution.

How you can help

Engage — Make sure CRF programs and materials are available in your school, and if not, work with us to make it happen.

Contribute — Donate to CRF so together we can ensure that future generations will be informed, motivated, and inspired to participate in our democratic republic.

Sponsor — Help a deserving student participate in our Expanding Horizon Institute..

Volunteer—CRF needs a range of volunteers including lawyers, judges, and legal professionals to bring the real world to students through our programs.

*Renewing what makes our country great. . .
we depend on you.*
